the 3 million newsletter

Dear EU citizen,

It's official: yesterday we lodged our judicial review at the High Court.

We're challenging a Home Office policy that is quietly stripping people of their rights. If the Home Office decides it made a mistake when it gave you EUSS status, it can:

- let your pre-settled status expire, with no right of appeal and no check on whether that's fair

- take away your right to bring family to the UK, even if you hold settled status, again with no appeal

And the Home Office is very often wrong when making these decisions:

- It wrongly told many Italian citizens they never had the right to status. It's now having to review every one of those cases.

- Many durable partners are being told their status was a mistake. The real mistake is the Home Office misreading its own complex rules, and recording the wrong details on their own decision letters.

People like Ada and Gio have had their lives turned upside down. Read Ada's story. Read Gio's story.

What happens next? A judge will decide whether our case can go to a full hearing. We've also asked the court to cap the costs we'd have to pay if we lose.

This is where you come in. Every donation, however small, helps us fight this case. It also shows the court how many people care.

Little drops make the mighty ocean!

Earned Settlement - changes to immigration rules announced on 2 November 2026

We are deeply concerned by the Government's Earned Settlement policies announced by Home Secretary Shabana Mahmood on Monday 2 November. These proposals risk creating further uncertainty, inequality and hardship for migrants and their families who have made their lives in the UK. We are already hearing such concerns being shared with us.

Read our full statement here. For those who are uncertain about the future around spousal visas of EUSS status holders, we have created a brief information resource here.
